What Have We Been Up To?

In the past year, the Indian Hills Community College Foundation has forged several new partnerships to benefit our students. Principal Foundation pledged a financial contribution to help create the Principal Foundation Computer Literacy Lab. John Deere Ottumwa Works and the Vermeer Foundation contributed to the construction of the North Campus expansion. This 25,000 square foot addition has created a state-of-the-art facility for our Diesel Technology and Welding Technology programs.

Two new food pantries were created in the past year. One opened inside Trustee Hall on the Ottumwa Main Campus and the other opened on the Centerville Campus. We understand that some of our students struggle with food insecurity, and we hope to alleviate this burden to help our students be successful.

Looking forward, we are planning to renovate the Rosenman Center to provide a central space in which to house all of the health simulation equipment, providing an up-to-date health simulation lab.

In this report, you will see the progress of the funds which were newly created over the last couple years. These new pathways have helped dozens of students to remain in school and complete their programs.

We are very proud of our students, our faculty and staff, and YOU our donors. With your help, the Foundation will continue to put the needs of our students first.

NEBULLAM: INDOOR FARMING & INNOVATION

Nebullam's genesis began as an idea to focus on food security and production, sustainably. Started in 2017, Nebullam founders include two Indian Hills Community College alumni, Danen Pool and Clayton Mooney, who set out to tackle the problems in indoor farming.

The average indoor farm takes 7 years to become profitable, because the growing equipment produces small amounts of food, while requiring large amounts of labor in the onsite, day-to-day operations. Nebullam has created proprietary growing equipment that produces more food, while Nebullam software acts as the onsite horticulturist, reducing labor needs. The Nebullam combination helps indoor farms reach profitability in less than 3 years.

Today, Nebullam has its own indoor farm, located in the Iowa State University Research Park. It grows lettuce, herbs, and microgreens year-round, offering a farm-to-door delivery service for Central Iowa residents. In early 2021, Nebullam growing technology will be deployed into partner farms throughout the United States.

The Indian Hills Community College Foundation has helped over 19,000 students since 1974.

We would not be able to impact the lives of so many students without the generous support of our donors. We want to thank each and every donor that has helped to create one of the largest community college foundation’s in the state of Iowa.
