
Write the introduction to your Research Report. It may be from one to three paragraphs in length: begin with a title, have a catchy lead-in, and include a thesis statement that shows consideration of more than one side of the issue.

Follow the MLA formatting as shown in your text. You do not need a title sheet; however you will need your name, Composition II, and date in the upper left side of the first page. Center your title, double-space, and begin typing your introduction. Indent your first and all paragraphs. Do not leave extra space between paragraphs, just double-space.

You are not required to use a source in the introduction, but if you do include information from a source, be sure to include a citation, either a signal phrase or parenthesis.

© Joy Lyle and Indian Hills Community College