Senior Year Plus Quality Assurance

It is the responsibility of institutions participating in Senior Year Plus (SYP) to ensure the quality of courses and compliance with the appropriate requirements of Iowa law. For both secondary and postsecondary courses, a variety of external accountability mechanisms exist to ensure that Senior Year Plus standards are met. These include a plethora of accreditation and audit processes.

Accreditation Processes

Educational institutions are reviewed through accreditation processes grounded in the fundamental assumption that quality is best served through processes that enable peers of an organization, informed by standards best understood and applied by professionals in the field, to make the comparative judgments essential to quality assurance. In Iowa, the peer review accreditation model is supplemented with assessments of compliance with the state minimum standards in Iowa law.

School District State Accreditation Process

The Iowa Department of Education's school improvement process utilizes a continuous improvement model for accountability while ensuring minimum state accreditation standards are met.

Through a cyclical process, school districts self assess, review needs, plan, implement changes, and evaluate success. The process determines compliance with state accreditation standards while providing a general assessment of educational practice. At the center of the process is a department-led comprehensive site visit which occurs once every five years. Following the visit, the department prepares an accreditation report which includes compliance-related citations and recommendations for the purpose of improving educational practices above minimal compliance.

HLC Accreditation Process

Institutions of higher education eligible to participate in Senior Year Plus must be regionally accredited by the Higher Learning Commission (HLC). This regional accreditation process certifies institutional quality using a process for self-improvement based on critical self-analysis and peer evaluation. In addition, accredited status is required for colleges to have access to federal funds, including student financial aid.

Through the accreditation process, colleges and universities are evaluated to ensure students receive quality offerings in line with their stated mission. In addition to assessing formal educational activities, the HLC also evaluates governance and administration, financial stability, admissions and student personnel services, resources, student academic achievement, organizational effectiveness, and relationship with external constituencies.

The accreditation process involves extensive self-study and a site visit by an accreditation team. Following each visit, a report is generated with recommendations regarding continued accreditation and for institutional improvement.

The HLC currently supports two pathways by which postsecondary educational institutions can maintain their institutional accreditation: Standard and Open. A third pathway, the Candidacy Pathway, is for colleges seeking initial candidacy. The Iowa Department of Education accepts all of the HLC approved accreditation processes. The most current HLC pathway information can be found on their website for the Standard and Open pathway.

Community College State Accreditation Process

In addition to the HLC accreditation process, community colleges are accredited by the State Board of Education. The accreditation process supplements the HLC process by ensuring compliance with state standards not specifically reviewed through the HLC review.

Through the state accreditation process, Senior Year Plus programs are reviewed. As with other 45 | Iowa Department of Education accreditation processes, state accreditation is focused on both minimum compliance and continuous improvement above standards.

The state accreditation process includes desk review reports and site visits. The schedule is based on a 10-year cycle with comprehensive evaluations in year 10 and interim evaluations in year five. Following each visit, a final evaluation report is generated with recommendations and one of the components reviewed is the college's concurrent enrollment program. The Iowa Department of Education may also conduct focus visits at any time if there is a pattern of serious complaints, a violation of rule or law, or if the college undergoes substantial unplanned changes.

Additional information on the state accreditation process may be found in the Iowa Community Colleges State Accreditation Guide.

NACEP Accreditation Process

In addition to institutional accreditation processes which ensure the public is well-served by an institution, colleges and universities are accredited by specialized accreditors which evaluate specific program areas (usually a discipline). National Alliance of Concurrent Enrollment Partnerships (NACEP) is the only national organization supporting programs, practitioners, and policy to advance concurrent enrollment.

Each of Iowa's 15 community colleges has committed to seeking NACEP accreditation and ensuring the quality of concurrent enrollment programming. Recognized as a national model for states instituting quality controls for dual enrollment programs, a number of states have implemented concurrent enrollment policies or laws which utilize NACEP standards or accreditation. NACEP utilizes 16 standards which cover six categories: partnerships, curriculum, faculty, students, assessment, and program evaluation. Senior Year Plus standards are in close alignment with NACEP accreditation standards. The Department prepared a crosswalk which details the alignment between Senior Year Plus requirements and NACEP standards.

The process for obtaining NACEP accreditation involves an extensive application and document review process culminating in a peer review consisting of representatives of NACEP-accredited two- and four-year institutions. Starting with the 2021-22 accreditation cycle, the program interview will transition to a virtual site visit. Once accredited, NACEP accreditation is valid for five years for initial programs and seven years for a re-accredited program. In addition to the traditional Concurrent Enrollment Program (CEP) endorsement, institutions have the option to apply for an additional endorsement: College Provided Faculty Model (CPF).

Additional information on the NACEP accreditation process may be found in the NACEP Accreditation Guide.

NACEP Fast Facts

Programs that allow high school students to take college courses in high school, known by various names such as dual enrollment, concurrent enrollment, dual credit, and early college, are popular, prevalent, and growing. The field has seen tremendous growth over the past decade the federal government and state statutes have increasingly expanded their recognition of this key student success initiative. As more colleges and school districts prioritize access to impactful high school to college bridging initiatives and more students and families seek better options for leveraging their high school years we have seen programs grow, develop, innovate and become integrated into the nation’s educational landscape.

We have combed through decades of state and federal education data and years of rigorous research to build this fact sheet for use by programs, practitioners, policymakers, communities, students and their families.

ONE IN THREE HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS TAKE COLLEGE COURSES

Dual and concurrent enrollment programs are popular across the country. Dating back to the 1950s, these programs have grown from a niche project to widely available in the US. Their unique ability to build lasting and impactful connections between secondary and post-secondary education and clear value to students, have made them as popular with families and policymakers alike.

- Thirty-four percent of U.S. students take college courses in high school. This is a threefold increase from the 10% participation rate reported in 2010. ¹
- In some states, high school students' postsecondary course-taking rates far exceed the national average.
 - » Indiana: 58% of Indiana high school graduates complete at least one college course ²
 - » Iowa: 56.8% of Iowa seniors enrolled in college courses in high school ³
 - » Idaho: 57% of Idaho high school graduates earned college credit while in high school ⁴
 - » Minnesota: 42.8% of public high school graduates enrolled in at least one college course in the 2018-2019 school year ⁵
 - » Colorado: 38.2% of Colorado high school graduates participate in the state's Concurrent Enrollment program ⁶

CONCURRENT ENROLLMENT IS THE MOST COMMON COURSE DELIVERY MODEL

- Eighty percent of dually enrolled students nationally take their college courses at their own school, and an additional 6% take the course at a school other than their home high school, such as a career center or academy. Students in the suburbs, towns and rural areas are even more likely to take a course at their own school. ¹

9 OUT OF 10 HIGH SCHOOLS OFFER COLLEGE COURSES

- 88.98% of high schools report that they offer dual enrollment coursework. ⁷
- High schools in the South (93.7%) and Midwest (91.1%) are more likely to offer dual enrollment programs than high schools in the Northeast (84.9%) or West (81.4%). ⁷
- The percentage of public high schools offering dual/concurrent coursework in 2017-18 varied from 100% in Georgia and Idaho to 55% in Nevada. ⁸

INCREDIBLE STUDENT IMPACT

- The Value of a Degree: A postsecondary degree or credential increases individuals' lifetime earning power and economic stability, career options and opportunities, offering stability in the face of downturns in the economy and labor market. Now, more than ever, it is critical for students to access and complete college, dual and concurrent enrollment improves students' likelihood of starting and finishing a degree.

- The Benefits of Dual and Concurrent Enrollment: Students completing college courses in high school, compared to their peers who complete no dual enrollment credits, are substantially more likely to
 - » Graduate high school
 - » Go to college
 - » Stay in college and complete a degree, often in less time than their non-participating peers
- Student completion of college courses in high school also has a positive effect on academic achievement in high school, high school graduation, non-remedial placement upon college entry, postsecondary GPA and credit accumulation, and degree attainment.⁹
- A study from the Community College Research Center (CCRC) found that 88% of the dual/concurrent enrollment students went on to college after high school and completed degrees at higher rates and in less time than their non-participating peers.¹⁴ Several studies have documented these positive impacts of dual/concurrent enrollment participation after controlling for various student academic and demographic measures.

A POWERFUL EQUITY LEVER FOR SOCIAL JUSTICE

Closing Equity Gaps for ALL students but Particularly Low-Income Students and Students of Color: These higher outcomes persist when controlling for race/ethnicity, parents' highest level of education and socioeconomic status, and the concentration of low-income or students of color in the student's high school.⁹⁻¹³

- Students from low-income backgrounds: Participating in dual/concurrent enrollment has a positive impact on college-going rates of students from low socioeconomic backgrounds.
 - » Students from low-income backgrounds and/or school districts who participated in dual/concurrent enrollment were nearly 10% more likely to enter college after high school graduation than their non-participating peers.⁹⁻¹³
- Students of color: Participating in dual/concurrent enrollment has a profound positive impact on students of color college-going rates.
 - » Students in majority-minority school districts that participated in dual/concurrent enrollment were 32-56% more likely to go on to college after high school than non-participating students in the same school district.⁹⁻¹²
 - » One state system study found that the 6-year college graduation rates for students of color that had participated in dual/concurrent enrollment were 33% higher than their peers that had not participated and 12% higher than white dual/concurrent enrollment participants.
- Early findings suggest that high school minority students who complete postsecondary math and science courses experience lower levels of remedial math placement and are more likely to start college as STEM majors and complete STEM degrees.¹⁵

AN UNDERUTILIZED EQUITY LEVER

- Dual and concurrent enrollment works to improve college-going and increases college success and degree attainment but it needs to be widely available for ALL students who can benefit from these programs. School characteristics and community characteristics all create inequitable access to this critical college access and success opportunity. We must do better!
- High-poverty, urban, small, and specialized high schools are less likely to offer dual/concurrent enrollment programs:
 - » Poverty: High-poverty high schools are 19% less likely to offer dual/concurrent enrollment programs than their low-poverty counterparts.¹⁶
 - » School location: 57% percent of urban high schools offer dual/concurrent enrollment opportunities, compared to 67% of suburban high schools and 77% of town/rural high schools.¹⁶
 - » School size: Small high schools (serving 200 or fewer students) are 32% less likely to offer dual/concurrent enrollment programs, compared to large high schools (serving over 1,000 students).¹⁶
 - » School focus: While 76% of traditional and 72% of magnet schools offered dual/concurrent enrollment courses, far fewer charter (40%), alternative (20%) and special education (34%) schools offered such programs.
- Students of parents with lower levels of educational attainment and Black and Hispanic students have lower dual/concurrent enrollment participation rates:
 - » Parents' educational attainment: Students from whose parents had less than a high school diploma had 16% lower rate of dual/concurrent enrollment participation than did students whose parents' highest level of education was a bachelor's degree or higher.¹
 - » Race/Ethnicity: 38% percent of high school students who were White or Asian had completed postsecondary coursework, compared to 30% of Hispanic and 27% of Black students.¹

Classroom Visit Information

Courses offered through Concurrent Enrollment (CEP) have the same course number, course title, course learning outcomes, and course credit hours as classes on the IHCC campus. Changes to courses are required to go through the Indian Hills Community College Academic Standards Committee. If course textbooks or learning outcomes are changed, this information is shared with all faculty including Concurrent Enrollment Faculty teaching the course by the discipline Program Director. Official course syllabi for all Indian Hills Community College courses are available on the college's META site.

During faculty mentor classroom visits and department meetings, the Concurrent Instructor and IHCC Faculty discuss ways to approach learning outcomes through course assignments and classroom discussions in an effort to maintain continuity of courses no matter where the course is taught. All CEP faculty members are required to submit their official course syllabus to the Connect 2 College Office prior to the start of each academic term to assure college expectations of CEP courses are met.

Classroom visits take place on a rotating basis according to the individual department's site-visit cycle with a minimum of one classroom visit every three academic years. During the classroom visit, the Faculty Partner engages in a concurrent class observation ensuring the course is consistent with the campus course. Documentation of the visit is written in a formal evaluation "IHCC Classroom Visitation Report" (see page 19) and signed by both the CEP Instructor and Indian Hills Community College faculty member during a follow-up conference to discuss the visit and answer any questions.

If the CEP instructor receives any "Unsatisfactory" or "Needs Improvement" marks, they will be placed on probation and be required to meet with the Director of High School Programs from Indian Hills Community College and their high school administration to develop a written plan of improvement, with timeline, to continue teaching for the college. Once a plan is submitted, the Faculty Mentor and CEP instructor will discuss and determine if the issues have been resolved.
